

Federica Cariti

PhD student at:

University of Geneva

Project title:

Light regulation of photosynthetic electron transfer

Educational background:

- 2006 - 2009 Bachelor Degree in Biotechnology, University of Turin, Italy
- 2009 - 2012 Master Degree in Industrial Biotechnology, full marks cum Laude, University of Turin, Italy
- 2013 Post degree specialization course in Food Law, University of Alessandria, Italy

Advantages of being an MSC fellow:

Being part of such as international and interdisciplinary network give me the opportunity to meet people from different countries and experts of different fields. This is a great chance to improve my knowledge and my personal skills.

Main Supervisor:

Michel Goldschmidt-Clermont

Nationality:

Italian

Research and Work experience:

- July 2010 - Sept 2011 Fellow at Food safety unit of Istituto Zooprofilattico Sperimentale del Piemonte, Liguria e Valle d'Aosta, Turin, (Italy). Food safety.
- Oct 2011 - March 2012 Trainee at Genetwister Technologies B.V., Wageningen, (Netherlands). Metabolic engineering of cyanobacteria for biofuel production.
- Dic 2012 - July 2013 Scientific Communication at Xké? Il laboratorio della curiosità, FONDAZIONE PER LA SCUOLA, Turin, (Italy)
- Since Sept 2013 PhD candidate at University of Geneva, Switzerland

Personal interests / motto:

I love food and everything that surrounds it, from cultural aspects, nutrition and food technology to cooking.
I like spending my spare time outdoor, like running and hiking.

Funded by the European Union